Thompson goes to Ottawa, again

By Ceilidh McClurg

Myron Thompson, Reform MP once again won the Wildrose riding by what could be called a landslide.

At press time Monday night, Thompson had secured about 75% of the votes in the riding.

When Thompson woke up this morning he said he felt confident in his ability to take the riding with an overwhelming majority.

"I was confident we were going to do well because all of the indications pointed that way. But, I also thought this morning that I would be glad when the day was over," said Thompson at his victory celebration Monday night.

Thompson said the unique hurdle with representing this constituency is that there is such a diversity in within the boundaries. He pointed to agriculture, natural park space in Banff, logging industry, the oil and gas industry, and the Indian reserves.

"This riding needs what the whole country needs a balanced budget, lower taxes and a strong justice system because we don't have a justice system now," he said only moments after he realized the Reform Party would take over official opposition status from the Bloc Quebecois.

Thompson joined in the cheering when the numbers for Reform started to lean in that direction.

With 301 seats up for grabs in this election the Reform party had taken more than 60 seats in the House of Commons by 9:30 p.m.

Nulli Secundus - Grads of 1997 second to none

By Yvonne Dick

Dramatic music from The Hunchback of Notre Dameswells as the drawbridge of the castle is slowly lowered to the ground. From out of the inky darkness bound the forty-nine men and women who comprise Didsbury High School's Graduating Class of 1997. Such was the dramatic entrance the students turned graduates gave to over 1,000 people packed into the bleachers and standing in the aisles at the Memorial Complex Arena last Saturday night. Heartfelt toasts from parents, students, and teachers; guest speaker Nirmala Naidoo-Hill; post-ceremony music and dancing by the grads of '97 all made for an enjoyable, memorable send-off.

The ceremony started with a banquet dinner for parents, friends, and teachers. Larry Lentz gave the invocation and the dinner began. Amidst lit candelabras, Hunchback of Notre Dame props, and personal crests the students had designed themselves and hung on the walls, we dined upon turkey, roast beef, mashed potatoes, gravy, salads, and black forest cake washed down with punch and tonic water.

One parent was heard to remark "I can't believe this is happening - it's so unreal. And yet... it's such a small portion of a person's life."

One student, Ashley Stewart, took this passage into adulthood seriously, arriving in the full Scottish kilt of his ancestors.

Mrs. Denise Perrin gave a toast urging students to never forget where they came from and who they are. "Life in the dark ages was very unpleasant. It was cold, primitive. Disease, war, famine. Not much has changed for our grads of '97. Bombs, wars, racial riots - what does the class of '97 have to face? Will they be any different? I think so. One of the things that makes them so special is the friendships. They've learned important lessons about bonds, trust, and respect. They were a nice group to teach, and quite possibly the best I've ever had. Wherever you go in life and whatever you do, don't forget your roots. Always carry a little bit of Didsbury with you."

It was clear that the students worked very hard to make their graduation night a success and a night to remember. The Hunchback of Notre Dame sets were borrowed from a Red Deer school in honour of the evening's theme - Medieval Times.

Student Sheldon McKee gave perhaps a small insight into one source of student motivation at DHS. "The teachers of DHS have allowed us to see ourselves as young adults outside of high school... our teachers exemplify success and every one of us wishes to copy that. When you have an education, no one can take it away from you. Thank you for believing in us and never letting us give up."

The caring that students and teachers have for each other was echoed in Sheila Taylor's toast to the teachers and Terry Ann Robertson's response from the teachers.

Taylor summed things up, "Saying goodbye to the people who mean a lot to you is always hard."

Robertson responded, "I've been very lucky this year. You have given me many things - I have learned ever so much and I thank you for that. I thank you for being my teachers this year."

Memorable events of the meal included one of the table flowers catching fire. "So if your candles are burning low, please, PLEASE extinguish them!" Thomas Brown, Grad Committee Chair and banquet toastmaster implored. Laughter filled the house, providing a brief respite from the other leading emotion - sadness at seeing these fine young men and women leave their school to go out in the world.

Then came the roast - err - toast from the students to the graduates. This was given by Russ Bisschop and Paul Ferguson, grade eleven. "This speech is supposed to be a toast but we can't fabricate things about the graduates. They welcomed us to DHS with open arms - showing us our lockers, often face first... What we've both been trying to say is, we're going to miss these guys. They threw the best parties and were the best friends."

School meeting cancelled

By Ceilidh McClurg

Chinook's Edge representatives pulled the plug on a meeting that would have given school councils and parents the chance to have their concerns addressed.

In a letter to the school council chairs, Chinook's Edge School Board chair cited the reasons for the cancellation.

"Realizing that the school council meeting was coming up so fast, our Central Office staff were trying their best to have their presentations ready. I realized late Tuesday night that this was becoming a very hard task to accomplish along with their regular duties of trying to complete the teacher transfers, new teacher contracts, school budgets, etc. etc."

Another reason given to the school councils was that because there are three assistant superintendents leaving and there would not be enough staff on hand to properly field questions.

Local trustee Deb Cousins questions the validity of what she called "excuses."

"It was the only chance before the school year ended the parents and the councils would have had to have their questions answered. I feel this was not good public relations with the community because they have closed the doors of communication between the upper and lower level of school government," said Cousins.

Some council chairs were unhappy with the move for a number of reasons including late notification and feelings that the meeting could have been held despite the absence of some of the assistant superintendents.

"I am not entirely comfortable with the fact that there was a real need to cancel it," said Cal Ausenhus, Didsbury's school council chairman. But, he added, "We still have a good working relationship between central office and this school council despite the fact we do share some of the concerns with other councils."

The phone calls to the council chairs started early in the morning but some were notified only hours before the meeting was to begin.

The meeting has been rescheduled to take place in the fall.

In other school board news, a special school board meeting that was to be held Monday was also cancelled when Cousins and Anne-Marie Brown, Olds trustee, presented a letter to the chairwoman stating the meeting was "unconstitutional" according to the School Act.

The two said they were not properly notified of the meeting that was to include discussions of the contract renewal of superintendent Dr. Altha Neilsen. This meeting was rescheduled to Wednesday morning.

Thompson said he plans to create a high profile for this riding.

"When I get to Ottawa, they'll know Wildrose exists," he belated.

Thompson said he expects the leader of the caucus, Preston Manning to call a meeting very quickly to prepare for the change in their status to official opposition.

He added that he believes Manning, "is a man of integrity," and he especially liked the comment made by Manning when asked if he would move into the official opposition residence in Ottawa and Manning responded, "No, sell it." Thompson said the money could be put towards the debt.

Thompson moved from the United States to Sundre in 1968 where he and his wife Dorothy still reside.

He was employed by the Sundre Junior and Senior High School for 23 years where he worked as a teacher, guidance councillor and principal. He also served as a town councillor and Mayor of Sundre. He first won the Wildrose seat in October of 1993.

Graduate Lucas Bisschop responded, "We're all going to miss you guys a lot. Work hard, study, party, and have a good time."

Andrea McCulloch gave the toast to the parents and Arnold McCulloch responded. "They worked hard out at my place for the May Monarch fund raising. If they carry on with the same working habits they will have no problem with their endeavours in life."

With that came a slight intermission as the guests adjourned to the arena for the ceremony. Inside the arena the lights dimmed, green, red and blue light shone on the stage - a full castle wall with working drawbridge. Ample seating was provided near the stage on the floor of the arena and students and parents sat together as the ceremony proceeded. Onlookers in the bleachers showed that clearly the community supports its young graduates. There was not an empty seat in the house.

Erin Sexsmith, valedictorian, began the ceremony on a positive note. "We would not be here tonight without your caring and support. Hopefully throughout the many years of struggle we have learned what we wish to become. A person's goal does not have to be lofty. Sometimes the smallest of goals can be the most worthwhile to achieve."

Andrea McCulloch, Tom Brown and Joanne Walker provided song for the audience. This earned them a standing ovation from their classmates. Next came the speech from Nirmala Naidoo-Hill, a DHS grad of 1982 and current 2&7 Calgary news anchor. "It's an honour to be here tonight, I'm proud to have been asked to be a part of your special day." Naidoo-Hill had the audience in stitches as she answered a few common questions. "Yes Chris Gaillus and I are married, just not to each other. No, I've never seen Ed Whalen's real hair - I'm not that old." Then Naidoo-Hill got down to the serious stuff. "How would you like to be a reporter covering a flood while standing knee deep in sewer water? We've had fire alarms go off in the middle of newscasts and anchors who got fits of giggles during serious stories." Naidoo-Hill states that she owes her success now to where she came from back in 1982. "I wouldn't be where I am today if not for something my parents taught me. Education is the most important thing - it's freedom, it's power. Expanding your mind can only lead to greater things - it's the passport to a better life. My education led to meeting the Royal Family, travelling through England, reporting in Guatemala. Grab life with gusto and enjoy it. Never settle but be the best that you can be. Each of you has something major to contribute to the world. Life is about doing it with style, creativity, passion. Education is the key which has just been handed to you. Go out, use it."

These graduates clearly understood the meaning of Naidoo-Hill's words. They gave grateful thanks to many people for their support and help with the evening. Grant Hemming for the sound system, Leah Wygeria for coordinating the grand march, the parent/student/teacher grad committee. Susan Williams, Cat Turner, and Dana Daines were presented with certificates to Stage West and roses.

As the Grand March began I noticed a mother standing in a quiet corner of the stands. There was a tear in her eye and a blissful smile on her face as she watched her adolescent become an adult.

Youngest voter in history

By Ceilidh McClurg

Five year old, Linden Ligertwood has been too busy playing with her toys to pay any attention to the election campaign, but maybe she should have followed it more closely.

According to Elections Canada, Ligertwood should have gone to polls to cast her ballot in Monday's election.

"She can't afford to pay taxes out of her meagre allowance so how can she be eligible to vote?" asked her grandmother, Myrna Watt.

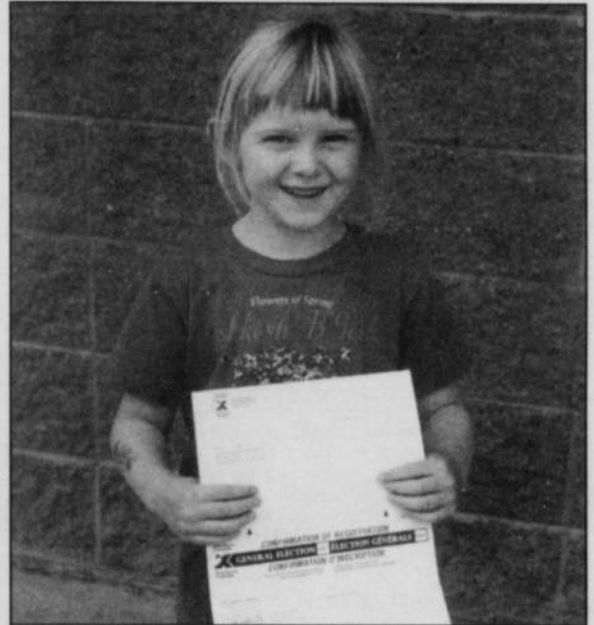

Ligertwood's grandma and mother, Lesley Watt, were surprised to find a confirmation of registration in the mail for the little girl.

"I thought this was just hilarious," said Linden's grandma. "I've been talking to other people who haven't even got their confirmation and they are actually eligible to vote."

Apparently, the problem originally started during the last provincial election when a confirmation came for the five year old. Watt laughed at it but figured it was some sort of unusually accident. She went to the polling station on election day and told them to cross her off the list and they did. Watt thought nothing more of it until a couple of weeks ago when the federal confirmations came in the mail. Yes, the same mix up had occurred again.

Myrna said she doesn't understand how this kind of thing could happen not once but twice.

Or maybe she does, "I think the government is a little over-administered, perhaps," she surmised.

Myrna joked that the records for her granddaughter will be so mixed up that by the time she is 30 years old she will be getting social security cheques.

Ligertwood didn't seem to understand what was going on or why she was having her picture taken. Her mom tried to explain that an election means, "picking the boss of Canada." The little girl just shrugged her shoulders and asked if she could go play her favorite game at Kidsbury Daycare.

The family plans to keep the notice of registration and put it into her baby book so that when she is old enough to understand what happened she can get a laugh out of the situation.

Golf award for Didsbury native

By Ceilidh McClurg

A former local resident is making headlines in the United States with his golf swing.

Anthony Dahl, son of Dean and Anne Dahl of Didsbury, has received much attention as team captain for the Mankato State University golf team. But, this week he was formally honored with a Maverick achievement Award in Minnesota.

In a press release the sport information centre at MSU had this to say about Dahl:

"He has consistently been a top performer for the Maverick golf team over the past two seasons. Anthony claimed a third-place finish at the Gustie Invitational in April when he carded a tournament low 69 on the final day."

His family is proud of what he has done with his talent.

"He started golfing in Didsbury," said his father Dean.

Dean used to take Anthony and his brother Deron to the Didsbury Golf Course whenever they had some spare time.

"There was nothing else to do," Anthony told the Mankato Free Press in an article this spring. "I love sports, and I picked up the game pretty quickly."

By age 10 Dahl was breaking 50 on nine holes. A young talent starting to form.

He continued to play golf throughout his high school years at Didsbury High School, along with being involved in basketball, football, hockey and track and field.

After graduation Dahl took a short term hiatus from the game to serve time in the Canadian Naval Reserve. But, when he was back on the greens it was like he had never left.

Dahl headed south to find a school in the United States where his father had played many collegiate sports. In fact Dahl played golf at the same community college as his father had played basketball many years before.

Eventually Dahl decided to attend MSU to take business administration and hone his golfing skills.

His father said, "He has played well. He is learning a lot."

It wasn't long before the coaches recognized the talented 24 year old and appointed him captain of the team.

Dahl is a self described perfectionist who is always looking for improvement in his game.

He was rewarded for his athletic and academic abilities among the 33 other award win-

EDITORIAL / OPINIONS

North - South rivalry flares up

Cellidh
McCLURG

You'll hardly believe this column is not about the election that we all voted in on Monday. Nope, this is about a competition, but one much more interesting and invigorating than watching the same old parties babble the same old rhetoric.

Donovan Bailey gave Canadians bragging rights when he cruised easily past Michael Johnson in their rematch Sunday afternoon.

Although the crowd was less than desired, the hollers and chants from those in attendance pointed clearly to the fact Bailey was the favorite, of course he was, the race was run in Toronto. I must admit I got really wrapped up in the race as did a lot of people. I think I saw it more as chance to prove to the Americans once and for all that they are not the be all and end all of the competitive world.

Boy, did my boyfriend ever call the race when he told me Saturday night he wanted to bet money that the runner who fell behind, either Bailey or Johnson, would "pretend" to have a leg injury in the straight away. Lo and behold....

If this was a fake or not I think these supposed amateur athletes really handled the whole race with extremely poor sportsmanship. First and foremost aren't these athletes supposed to be amateurs? And I thought amateurs weren't supposed to make money, especially $100,000 per second, to compete in their sport. It's a loss of the focus of the sports spirit.

Speaking of the spirit of amateur sports, these men are supposed to be role models and I personally don't think either of them handled themselves that way before, during or after the race.

It started with Bailey's cries that the track was an unfair advantage to Johnson because of the abnormal 75 metre curve and 75 metre straight away. Okay so maybe he wasn't ready for that and maybe I don't fully understand the dynamics of the mental visualization that seemed so important to Bailey. But, I really started to wonder if he expected to lose and was just making excuses for himself before the starting gun even fired. Maybe it was a strategy to throw off Johnson and make him too confident so Bailey could blow out of the starting blocks and surprise him. I also didn't like the things Bailey said after the race. If it was me I am sure I would have been thinking some of those thoughts but I would like to think I would have been able to keep them to myself and said something a little more tactful.

Nor do I believe Johnson's conduct was sportsman-like when he publicly slammed Bailey's personality. He also refused to ever recognize Bailey's earned title of "The Fastest" even though he race was run fair and square. And the injury, well, that has to be left to each to decide their take on it.

Now don't get me wrong I loved watching the actual 15 seconds of race. It got my adrenaline pumping. My cheers for Canada's very own Bailey could have been heard a few blocks away. It was the good old rivalry between Canada and the United States and a chance to maybe rub their nose in the title of "Fastest Man in the World."

It seems to me that some, not all, Americans tend to snub their nose at us up North. They like to pretend that either we do not exist when it suits them best, or that we are merely a reflection of them when it suits them in their purpose.

Our Canadian entertainers are finally having a chance to make the big bucks in a world wide market, but it seems as soon as someone like Celine Dion, Alanis Morissette or Amanda Marshall becomes a worldwide household name they are automatically blended into their American culture. No one would dare forget that an American is an American if they are showcasing their talents around the world. But it seems to be okay for the reverse to happen.

A perfect example: Elton John was on The Rosie O'Donnell Show a few weeks ago raving about the artistic talents of Amanda Marshall when he called her, "A nice American girl." Whoa, if you must give her a nationality make it the right one please.

I am proud of being Canadian, as I am sure are those who hail from the North. Canada is the "True North Strong and Free," oh and, the home of the "Fastest Man on The Planet" despite what the American press wants to believe.

"Ralph's Reinvestment": Redecoration or reward?

LET'S TALK TAXES is a weekly commentary by the Canadian Taxpayers Federation - Alberta Division

In his first full term as Premier, Mr. Klein presided over costcutting, business-planning, budget balancing "Ralph's Revolution" While the renovations are far from complete (indeed, hopefully, improvements and innovations in service delivery will be an ongoing focus), the jury's still out on where Mr. Klein's "stay-the-course" growth-managing second term is heading.

The outcome of the much heralded Alberta Growth Summit, to be held in Edmonton September 29-30, will provide some answers. The Summit "is aimed at building consensus among all sectors of Alberta's economy for determining how the province should respond to the pressures associated with growth." Eighty delegates, 40 from each of the private and public sectors, are currently being selected to recommend what "policies and action [are] needed to ensure sustainable and broad-based growth in Alberta." The participants will be split into seven sectors: Government, Labour, Social Economy, MUSH (municipalities, universities, schools and hospitals), Business and Industry, Energy, and Agriculture and Rural Development.

According to the Premier, "we'll look at how our province can respond to these pressures and to the rising demand for public services while continuing to live within our means."

Pardon me? Growth pressures AND rising demand for public services? Certainly economic and population expansion will heighten spending needs, for things such as infrastructure and more public services personnel. But "rising demand for Public services"? Perhaps Ralph's thinking about the demands of the vast array of interest groups well represented at the summit. But that comment should cause average Albertans, the majority of whom recently endorsed Ralph's downsizing Revolution, to at least unfurl red flags.

The last time Alberta was laced with "pressures of growth," during the oil boom days, the Alberta Government built up expectations - demand for government services - only to have the bottom fall out on the revenue side. The spending side, meanwhile, fueled by those expectations, proved difficult to restrain. Albertans have, are, and will be paying for the debt that resulted.

The Summit gives various groups a forum to push for bigger government. As interest costs fall there is a danger that program expenditure will climb. In other words, overall spending remains about the same, but the size of government as defined by expenditures on goods and services (net of interest costs,) grows. So far, most of the savings realised by paying down debt have gone to programs.

Also important to consider is that the legislated requirement that all of an annual surplus go to debt has been replaced by a less stringent law. Previously, if more revenue was coming into the government's coffers during the year than had been expected resulting in mid-year projection of a larger than expected surplus it couldn't be spent on anything but debt reduction. Alberta experienced two consecutive billion dollar surpluses and this year's will be over two billion. Now, the only requirement is that any year-end surplus go to debt. If revenues are surging, they can be spent, provided enough is left to make all average payment of $450 million to debt.

It's up to Albertans to make noise before September's Summit. More of interest cost savings should go to debt and tax relief, and any program spending increases should target Albertans' priorities for growth, not interest groups. "Ralph's Reinvestment" should be "Ralph's Reward," not "Ralph's Redecoration."

"My child is two and not talking. Should I be concerned?"

By Janice Jonah - Speech Language Pathologist of Health Authority 5

The critical years for language learning are between birth and five years of age. Therefore, the earlier a speech and language problem is identified, the more effective the intervention will be. There is evidence that nearly two-thirds of children identified before age two as late talkers continue to show delays in expressive language at age three. For more than half the children who continue to have problems at age four, the risk of developing learning disabilities is very high. Furthermore, up to 75% of preschoolers with language delays displayed persisting speech and language problems in later childhood and between 53 - 59% of children who have language disorders show difficulty rearing to read. When a child can not make him/herself understood, problems with social interactions, behavior and/or self esteem may also result. Therefore, intervention should begin early to prevent or reduce the severity of the language delay as well as the accompanying difficulties that children may experience with social interactions, behavior and self-esteem. Early intervention may help prevent later learning disabilities.

Parent involvement is very important for a child's success in learning speech and language. If your child is two years old and not talking, there are parent-child sessions at the District Health Services which gives parents ideas on how to help their child learn and practice their speech and language at home.

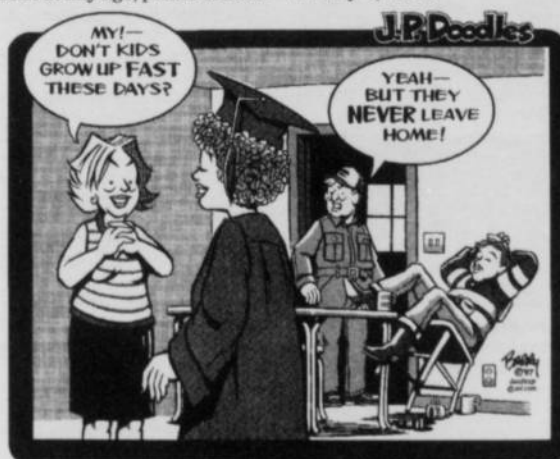

The earlier the problem is identified, the greater the chance for faster and more successful results.

If you are concerned about your child's language development at any age, please contact the speech and language department at your District Health Services office.

Successful partnership in health and safety

Health Authority 5 and Palliser Health Authority recently received $24,674.74 in financial rebate from the Worker's Compensation Board of Alberta. The two Health Authorities joined together to participate in the Partners In Injury Reduction Program. This is a voluntary incentive plan available to organizations who implement Health and Safety programming. The program is based on partnerships between the two Health Authorities, Alberta Labour, and WCB. The rebate was presented to representatives from two Health Authorities by WCB in Calgary on May 5, 1997.

HRG will soon open the first private hospital

Dear Editor:

The Klein government is actively promoting the next level of privatization of our health care system. The Health Resource Group ("HRG") a private, "for-profit" corporation will soon open the first private hospital in Alberta.

Three Calgary hospitals have been closed because the government believes they are no longer needed. Now one of those buildings, the former Grace Hospital is being equipped by HRG to offer a range of medical services including acute care services. Coincidentally, the CEO of Health Resources Group is Jim Saunders. As former Chief Operating Officer of the Calgary Regional Health Authority, Mr. Saunders played a key role in the closure of the three hospitals in Calgary, including the Grace Hospital.

The public health system will be eroded by the introduction of private hospitals such as HRG. Mr. Saunders has publicly stated that HRG hopes to contract with the WCB for rehabilitative health services. Currently, the Workers' Compensation Board provides almost $74 million dollars to hospitals, physiotherapists and other health care service providers for rehabilitative services for their claimants. The HRG could remove much of that $74 million out of our public health care system. In addition, HRG would also like to provide certain insured services like ear, nose and throat operations. Mr. Saunders has also speculated on contracting with the Calgary Regional Health Authority to provide hospital beds during busy times.

It has been the experience in the United States that private hospitals tend to perform the high return, high tech procedures and leave longer term more difficult cases for the public hospitals. The best doctors and specialists are also tempted to leave the public system for the lure of more money in the private system. In addition, the health care system in the United States costs more than twice as much to operate as the public health system in Alberta.

Neither the Premier nor the Minister of Health are willing to stop this incursion of Americanized health care into Alberta. They have consistently refused to say that HRG will not receive public money for services that are already covered under the public system. This could be simply achieved by either the Premier or the Minister stating that no Regional Health Authority or other publicly funded agency shall be allowed to contract services with HRG. Strong leadership is important to the preservation of our publicly funded health care system. To date, the Premier and the Minister have not shown that leadership.

The Alberta Liberal Caucus believes that Alberta should have a health care system that works for all of us regardless of how much money we have. We urge you to let Premier Klein or Health Minister Halvar Jonson know Albertans do not want a two-tier Americanized health care system.

Sincerely,
Grant Mitchell, Leader
Alberta Liberal Opposition

Block Parent Program

Dear Editor:

I am writing in regards to the Block Parent Program in Didsbury. In talking to some people in the community there are some misconceptions about what Block Parents is and who can be a Block Parent.

Block Parents is an organization that is run in many communities in Alberta by volunteer individuals in that community. It is put in place for the safety of all residents, not just children. Anyone hurt or in trouble can go to a house which has a Block Parent sign in it. That Block Parent can choose to open the door to you or talk through the door to you. They will call for the proper help that you would require.

You do not have to be at home all day or have children or be a family to be a Block Parent. You just need to be a caring individual who wants to make our community a safer place to live in. If you are not home, you just take the sign out of your window so people know you are not available to help them.

I encourage parents, grandparents, single individuals, look around your area. Is there a Block Parent on your street? If not, we need you!

Some may say, "Oh, Didsbury is a safe place to live." Well for the most part it is, but just a month or so ago again a mother approached one of our board members and said her son had been beaten up badly walking from school. If a Block Parent had lived on that street he would have had somewhere to go for help.

Let's be a community who cares, become a Block Parent. Call 335-3552. Come find out more about us on June 7, 10 - 2:30 at our fundraiser at the Didsbury Elks Hall.

Provincial smoking ban proposed

Dear Editor:

The Alberta Provincial Government recently gave second reading to Bill 205 Protection From Secondhand Smoke in Public Buildings Act, which would ban smoking in provincially operated buildings. Final vote will take place in the next few weeks.

The bill would allow the Alberta Government to serve as a healthy role model by promoting smoke-free indoor areas and worksites. This message is consistent with the government's health reform initiatives and its efforts to reduce demands on the health system.

The bill also supports the government's fiscal reform agenda by promoting improved worker health and productivity. According to Labour Canada, these costs amount to several hundred dollars per smoking employee in terms of absenteeism, lost productivity, and cleaning costs.

The bill would help to bring the provincial government in line with thousands of private sector employers in Alberta who have already declared their workplaces smoke-free.

Alberta is only one of three remaining provinces (in addition to Quebec and P.E.I.) that does not provide a smoke-free workplace for all of its employees.

The bill would help to set the stage for the Alberta Tobacco Reduction Plan - a multi-million dollar strategy aimed at reducing tobacco use by 5 percent over the next three years.

I urge Albertans to call and write Premier Klein phone: 427-2251, Fax: 427-1349, and their MLA's. Ask them to support Bill 205.

Your letters and calls will make the difference.

Mount View Lodge News

By Annie Caush

Hi all. We thought for a few days that winter was over but the snow last week made us change our minds and some plans. We surely hope we get some sunshine soon.

Here at the Lodge there always seems to be something going on. Some activities will be discontinued for the summer but there will still be plenty to keep us interested in life. It's so nice to see everything turn green and the trees and shrubs coming into bloom after our long winter.

We had the May Birthday Party earlier this month. As usual it was hosted by faithful Auxiliary members and we enjoyed the lovely piano music and a nice lunch. Those celebrating May birthdays are Lil Drever, Edna Pollock and Nita St. Clair. Best wishes!

On Saturday a car load of residents travelled to Sundre for their Spring Tea. It was a nice drive even if it was raining and they still had quite a bit of snow.

Our newest residents, Mr. & Mrs. Harold Perrin are getting moved in. We welcome you and hope you soon feel 'at home' here.

Exalted Ruler, Dave Franz and Leading Knight, Lloyd Tevendale of the Didsbury Elks present a cheque for $783.02 to Grant Spence, Principal of Ross Ford Elementary School for the purchase of an Easy Listening System to be used by Jolene Shultz.

News from the Dragon's Den

On June 9, 1997 at 7:30 p.m. Didsbury High School will be holding an information night concerning the Internet and computer installation with the School Division. Joyce McCoy of Chinook's Edge Regional Division will outline the computer systems that have been installed with the school and the jurisdiction. Barry Davidson, from the Canadian Crime Prevention Centre, will address some of the concerns that educators and parents have about the Internet. He will explore different areas of the Internet such as news groups, chat groups, e-mail and the World Wide Web (www) and how to protect children and adults from possible dangers.

Everyone is welcome to attend this presentation.

"Think and Drive" summer campaign

By Richard Marz, M.L.A. Olds-Didsbury-Three Hills

The 1997 "Think & Drive" Summer Campaign faced its first long weekend of the summer. This three-year Alberta Traffic Safety Initiative was launched in 1996. Its partners include approximately 30 traffic safety groups - including municipal police services and the RCMP, the Alberta Motor Association, the Alberta School Bus Contractors Association, The Alberta Student Transportation Advisory Council, People Against Impaired Driving (PAID), the trucking industry and other special-interest programs that address traffic safety province-wide.

Now that summer is finally upon us, there will be more traffic as residents and visitors fill the highways and roadways on the way to their favourite summer destinations. It is important that drivers remember to be aware of road conditions and other motorists, pedestrians, and cyclists. All too often our news is filled with automobile accidents involving injuries and fatalities.

"It's everyone's responsibility" is the message as the Alberta Traffic Safety Initiative launches its "Think & Drive" summer campaign across the province.

You will soon begin to notice mobile electronic information boards along Highway 2 that have been strategically placed to increase safety awareness. In addition to the "Share the Road" message, warning messages on road conditions, collision information, construction delays and general safety messages will also appear on the signs throughout the year. Please, as each of you venture out to enjoy the summer, remember to drive safely. Even one life is too precious to lose.

Community History And Trivia

By Dale Peters

The more things change, the more they stay the same

Walking through the School-room display at the museum, I came across a number of old school notebooks. One that caught my eye was an art book by one of the schools former students. Unfortunately, the book was not dated but contained the notes of a young fellow, probably grade 6 or 7. The notes are on the subject of art and decorating and most likely was written sometime in the first half of this century. As the title suggests, the more things change, the more they stay the same. Read the following excerpt from these old notes and see if you agree.

The Dining Room

"The dining room should be a place of good cheer and hospitality. Quiet dignity should be developed in the selection of furniture and other decorative features. The spirit of good cheer is perhaps best developed by low values of grays, orange, brown or red. Light colours which are not too aggressive will also do for the colour scheme of a dining room."

Although the colours we choose may vary from year to year, it seems to me that even today this is a most accurate description of an ideal dining room. If you take a walk through the museum, you will note that the colours mentioned are everywhere. I have spotted pieces of linoleum here in muted shades of red with floral patterns in soft pinks, blues and golds. There are many china patterns in oranges and reds, displayed in front of tapestries of similar colour. It fascinates me that you can read a short story like this one and then take a walk and almost see what the author is talking about. It also amazes me that the story, although written many years ago, still rings true. The dining room should be a place of good cheer and hospitality, don't you think, in fact this is how the world should be. Yes, I believe it is true, the more things change, the more they stay the same; and I think this is a good thing.

Today's Trivia: 1907 - Census in Didsbury reported 709 residents, twelve more than the town of Olds. I guess some things do change!

Dale Peters and the Didsbury and District Historical Society welcome your views and stories about our community's history. If you have information you would like to share please write to CHAT, Box 602, Didsbury, Alberta T0M 0W0, or drop your letter off at the museum. Museum hours are Wednesday to Friday from 2 - 5 p.m.

O.E.S. news

By Beulah Gilson

The May 20th meeting of St. Hilda Chapter #27 convened at 8:15 p.m. In spite of the snow storm, we were fortunate to have all but one office filled.

Kay Johnston P.M. reported that close to two hundred people were present to enjoy the Dinner Theater. She thanked the many members of O.E.S. and Masons who worked together to ensure the evening ran smoothly. "Theatre Didsbury," with talented local members involved, enacted the comedy "Kiss or Make Up."

Twelve members of St. Hilda Chapter will be attending the eighty-sixth annual session of the Grand Chapter of Alberta, to be held in Red Deer, June 6, 7 and 8. There will also be a church service at Gaetz Memorial United Church 7:30 p.m. June 5. Our Chapter will be honored to have Terry Russell

P.M. installed as Grand Martha. She was presented with a corsage to match her Grand Chapter gown by Janet Rosenke A.M. Also taking part in Grand Chapter will be Kay Johnston P.M. as Grand Marshal for the Grand Pages and Margery Steckler P.M. as a member of the choir.

Since the Calgary highway was not safe for travel, the young men (ages 13 to 21) who belong to the De Molay organization were unable to present their addendum "Mother Talk - a tribute to mothers." De Molay is an international organization which offers opportunities for the young people to develop skills in leadership, citizenship, community involvement and friendships. Birgit Due P.M. had been chosen to represent "the mothers" and since the De Molay young people were not available, Beulah Gilson W.M. presented her with a bouquet of carnations.

Your loved ones will be moved.

Innovative format works for Calgary Antique Show

Imagine five acres jam-packed with every possible kind of antique. Picture 150 dealers from every province between British Columbia and Quebec displaying their stock under huge festival tents. Add an attractive, landscaped park, excellent food services, free parking, live entertainment and children's amusements. They're all important ingredients of the third annual Calgary Summer Antique Show, returning to Canada Olympic Park, June 28 and 29.

The antique show-in-a-park concept, a first in western Canada, has quickly become popular with Alberta antique buffs. Admission line ups began to form almost an hour before opening at last year's show. Total attendance nearly doubled the previous year's figures.

"People are enjoying the relaxed atmosphere, the pleasant surroundings. What a great way to shop for antiques," Darcy Paladeau, Calgary antique dealer made this observation during the 1996 show. And Paul Gagnon, jewellery dealer from BC, pointing to the strolling musicians and children's entertainment, stated, "This isn't just an antique show, it's a festival!" Indeed, dealers have been quick to book space at the 1997 show. The show, with 150 dealers from across Canada, was sold out by mid-March.

The Calgary show offers everything from benches to buttons. Visitors will see an abundance of furniture, both country and formal. Ontario dealer Randy Plester specializes in oak and maple furniture from 1880 to 1920. Steve Hinton, also from Ontario sells early Canadian pine. Button collectors can meet two of Canada's foremost dealers in early, collectible buttons. Both Linda Kupecek and Terry Delaney will be there with rare buttons and related products. Rare phonographs are the specialty of Jeff Kiss from Leduc. Jeff searches across Canada for his antique table and floor model phonographs. He'll have a few unusual pieces at Calgary. Among many Calgary area dealers are Chris Bashford, Sheldon Smithens, June Dyson and Lloyd and Shirley Schinnour. Show convenor Wendy Gadsden adds, "We have lots of great dealers seldom seen in the Calgary area. They will offer something for everyone."

Calgary Olympic Park is an ideal site for the antique show. Facilities include ample free parking, full service washrooms, and lots of great food. The park's landscaped grounds provide a scenic backdrop for the show. COP will also provide live music and children's activities at the show. The park's permanent attractions, the Olympic Hall of Fame, the luge rides and tours are also open all weekend.

The Calgary Summer Antique Show happens on the weekend of June 28 and 29, at Canada Olympic Park. Show hours are Saturday, June 28 from 9 a.m. til 5 p.m., and Sunday, June 29 from 10 a.m. til 5 p.m. The park is on the Trans Canada Highway West, at Bowfort Road, less than 10 minutes from downtown. A weekend pass is $5.00 per person, includes free parking and entitles you to come and go all weekend. Children 12 and under are free.

INSIGHT INTO EYESIGHT

MICHAEL KOSTECKY

PROPER LIGHTING

Many people consider proper lighting to be an essential element in preventive eye care. Mothers have been haranguing children for decades, if not centuries, about not reading in poor light. Their intentions are admirable, but the fact is that you cannot harm your eyes by reading or doing any kind of seeing in less than "good" light.

This does not mean you should read in the dark. There is a proper level and location of light for reading that will help you see better and cut down on eyestrain. However, this is a matter of comfort, not medical health.

The best light setup for reading is when the light source is located behind you and is directed onto the page. In this way, what you are looking at will be light, but you will not have light glaring off the white page into your eyes. Within reasonable bounds, the brighter the light, the better, since it will provide more contrast and make the words easier to read.

Handbags in history

Explore the evolution of a fashion accessory which, for many women, is a necessary evil—the purse. A new display by the Glenbow Museum in Calgary shows how fashion created the need for small handbags. The exhibit also explores how the changing role of women in society has been reflected in handbag styles. Women's Handbags will be on display from May 21 through August at the Roulston Museum in Carstairs.

In the early nineteenth century, the style in women's clothing was for a slim, narrow silhouette that made pockets impractical. Ladies began knitting, crocheting, embroidering and beading bags for: carrying handkerchiefs, a few coins, or other small belongings. By the end of the nineteenth century, technological developments made it possible for companies to mass produce beaded handbags. These became increasingly popular as women became more and more active outside their households.

Women's Handbags features a wide range of early handbags, from a hand embroidered beaded fabric bag made in the 1900s, to a gun-metal mesh purse made between 1900 and 1920. Indispensable accessories which would have been carried in the purses, such as lipstick and nail polishing paste, are also shown.

Come also to see the new display Butter Making in Carstairs. The museum is open on Wednesday and Thursday from 1 - 4 p.m. For more information please call 337-3710.

Barns built to last - Save time and money

Careful engineering during the planning and construction stages and an investment in optimum structure design more than pay for themselves over the life of the barn. Functional design can extend the life of a barn, improve productivity of livestock and protect the health of farm workers. There are several factors to consider when designing a new dairy or livestock barn.

"Dairies and hog barns have some specific issues but many of the engineering principles apply to any type of barn," says Robert Borg, regional engineer with Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural Development. "The first consideration is the cost of electrical components and building materials."

When making decisions on materials, consider the life of the building. Keeping initial costs low can mean higher maintenance and operating costs."

Design the barn from the floor up. Some wall and floor materials are much easier to clean than others, consider this when choosing flooring. If plastic flooring is going to be used, check to see if it will burn or if it is fire resistant.

"If planning a concrete floor, there are additives for concrete that reduce pore space to below bacteria size for better cleaning," says Borg. "The compromise is between a rough enough surface for traction and one that is smooth enough not to create foot and skin injuries. Grooves scored in the flooring promotes good traction for cows and helps prevent injuries."

Plan all buried lines carefully. Buried large plastic pipes that carry manure away must be placed, packed with sand and backfilled properly so they stand up to daily use. Going back in and digging up a collapsed pipe that wasn't installed correctly is expensive.

"A common belief is that dairy barns don't need supplemental heat, but there is some debate on this," says Borg. "You don't want the barn to get wet inside and some heating supplement can help keep it dry. Not only is it uncomfortable for the cows but a damp barn is prone to early deterioration."

When designing the roof of a barn, it is important to consider all of the local snow loads. Roofs attached to the main barn can catch snow drifts and should be constructed with stronger rafters. Make sure the insurance on your barn covers roof failures due to snow.

Wall coverings should be fire resistant. Horizontal wall girts for attaching metal sheathing can create a runway for mice and a horizontal chimney for fire spread. Vertical blocking should be placed between girts every eight to 12 feet or apply the metal horizontally to avoid the need for wall girts.

"If designing a dairy, the material used for lining the milk house also deserves a little extra consideration, too," adds Borg. "Puck board or high density polyethylene has become popular for this purpose. Nothing sticks to this recycled product, and that makes it tough to seal sheets together. The material also has a very high expansion rate when heated which could result in splitting seams and maintenance problems in the future."

Proper heat and ventilation add considerably to the life of a barn. Use good quality components to keep maintenance and utility costs down. Ventilation chimneys with aerodynamic inlets and unobstructed tapered outlets have double the airflow of straight chimneys with hoods. Even though they are more expensive per unit, they lower by half the electricity used for equivalent air flow and, because of greater efficiency, fewer units are needed.

"These are just some of the considerations that need to be addressed when building a new barn," adds Borg. "Before you start construction, contact your local Agriculture engineer or dairy association for additional information. A little advance planning can save time and money in the long run."

LIFESTYLE TIPS

What stage are you at?

Canadian Fitness and Lifestyle Research Institute and ParticipACTION

Becoming active occurs in stages, with steps forward and steps backward. In the normal course of things, people adopt physical activity, maintain it for a while, stop it and readopt it over time. Depending on where you are, different strategies can help you to become more active.

Determine where you stand personally by checking the statement below that best describes your current physical activity pattern.

I am not currently active, I have not done any activity for a long time, and I have no intention of becoming active in the near future. Right now, you're in a stage of precontemplation. Individuals in this stage sometimes report difficulties such as an illness or an injury as a barrier to participation. According to the 1995 Physical Activity Monitor, conducted by the Canadian Fitness and Lifestyle Research Institute, less than 2% of the Canadian population are at the precontemplation stage. Tip: Read up on the benefits of physical activity.

I am not currently active, I have not been active over the past 12 months, but I intend to be so in the foreseeable future. You are currently in the contemplation stage. Only 4% of Canadians are contemplators.

They are aware that being inactive is a problem and are seriously considering taking some steps to address the problem. Tips: Try substituting as many active behaviours to sedentary behaviours as you can. Take the stairs instead of the elevator. Walk or bike for short errands. Play with the kids.

I was active at times during the last 12 months, I am no longer active, but I intend to resume physical activity in the future. For the time being, you are in relapse from physical activity, along with 16% of Canadians. You are at greater risk of relapse if you are 25 to 44 years old and if you are a woman, perhaps because of family responsibilities. Tip: Plan how you can get around the obstacle that tripped you in the first place.

I have recently become active after a period of irregular or no activity over the past 12 months, and I intend to stay active. You're on the way to developing a crucial health habit. You have lots of company: 42% of Canadians are in the action stage. Women are more likely than men to be in this stage. Tips: Seek and use the support of caring friends in your attempts toward exercise. If you miss a session, make a point of getting to the next one to regain your momentum.

I have been regularly active for the past 12 months, I am currently active, and I intend to stay active. Congratulations! You have achieved a stable pattern of physical activity and are in the company of 34% of Canadians in the maintenance stage. Men and women are equally likely to be in this stage.

Tips: Keep your activity program interesting by including a variety of activities. Lend a helping hand to those who need a gentle nudge to become regularly active. Physics 101

Carstairs asks for county support for multi-use facility

By Ceilidh McClurg

The Carstairs Futures Committee is hoping its plea to the County of Mountain View will stir up some financial support for their proposed multipurpose facility.

In a presentation to the council at their meeting last Wednesday, members of the committee requested the county cover the tab of $200,000 for 12 acres of land preparation for a combined arena and school facility.

"What we are trying to do in Carstairs is to blur the line between community and educational facilities," said Warren Smith, principal of the Hugh Sutherland School which is in bad need of repair.

The committee has received word their district has received

$2.5 million for modernization of the school facilities. The Futures Committee was formed last fall when it became clear that amount of money was not sufficient to fund the modernization of the very old and run down school. The focus then changed to the possibility of construction of a new school connected to a gymnasium and arena which could become a whole community facility funded by both the school board and the town residents.

The logic behind the idea is that it would offset costs of construction for all three buildings which need to be rebuilt. The arena in Carstairs is approaching 50 years old.

"There is significant cost savings that can be offered," said Ken Smith, co-chair of the committee.

"We have terrific support from the whole community," said Ken. He informed the county that a questionnaire had been distributed to residents at a public forum in February asking what the residents thought of the multi-use idea. He reported 88% were in favor of pursuing that avenue.

County councillors are considering the request for the money to prepare the ground for construction. Smith was hoping to have their response by the beginning of June to include in the business proposal the committee has to complete and send to Alberta Education.

"We are at a point where we have to get our business plan done before we can go to the next step," said co-chair Cathy Westland. But, she added the decision by the county to spend the money would not be the deal breaker even though the committee sincerely hoped for their support.

The councillors chose not to make their decision immediately because they had some concerns they wanted to examine before handing over the money.

Coun. Linda Burrell raised the question that if the first stage of the construction was to be the school and there was no guarantee the arena would be attached in the future the county may be funding something that is not a part of their mandate.

"I have a problem spending municipal dollars on the educational side," said Burrell.

Coun. Harvie agreed. "What kind of precedent may it set?" he asked.

Coun. Penner said he felt the $200,000 cost of the site preparation was not out of line.

Westland reported about $125,000 has been raised towards the project in the community through a variety of fundraisers with more to come.

Warren sat with crossed fingers as he told the councillors the committee hoped to start the groundwork this fall or next spring.

RELIGION

Way of Life

- Holiness at close quarters

By Bruce Wiebe, Pastor
Bergthal Mennonite Church

For yard maintenance guru's this has been another season of anticipated frustration. Cold, snow, wind, frost, and now rain have damaged our trees and our perennials and our egos, while delaying the planting of our annuals and our annual enjoyment. The only thing that is in full bloom is... the dandelion. Yet, all is not lost. Parkland Agri Services is ready to help you to "Curtailed" even this bloomin' problem. With hard work, good weather and a little luck, there may still come a time when the yard will look "perfect."

This desire for perfection is a driving force in many areas of our lives, including faith. We have some expectations and hopes that the church, as a purveyor of faith, will be "perfect" (people who take their faith seriously, and often too seriously, prefer the word "holiness"). These guru's of faith point to passages such as 1 Peter 1:16 which reads, "You shall be holy, for [God] is holy." Yet, most of us are aware that the church is not yet perfect. In fact, there are lots of dandelions blooming in our midst.

How do we account for this failure to be perfect? Does the presence of sin and sinners discount the church's claim to the pursuit of holiness? In looking to Jesus Christ as the author and perfecter of faith Christians note that Jesus did not pursue holiness by maintaining a cautious distance from sin but instead engaged and transformed it. The Christian church exists today for the purpose of gathering sinners together who will allow themselves to be engaged and transformed by this same Christ. This holiness is not so much a state of perfection as a direction pursued.

People who take their faith seriously are being transformed, day by day, from one degree to another into the image of their God and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

Rather than chiding the church for its lack of holiness, we should be thankful that there is a place where imperfect sinners can go to meet their perfect God. Perhaps there is a place for you and me in these churches.

Teacher Appreciation Week

Vickie Milliken will be among the many teachers who will enjoy a special lunch served up in their honor in recognition of Teacher Appreciation Week.

On June 4, about 100 teachers and support staff will take a reprieve from their duties for one hour to soak up the special treatment given to them by volunteer parents in the community.

Milliken, who is a first year teacher at Westglen wanted to thank the organizers.

"I think it's a great idea, especially in these times when education seems to be underfunded. I think it's great to appreciate the extra work that goes on behind the scenes."

The money to cover the costs of the event were raised by having corporate sponsors and the Adopt-A-Teacher program. A parent could pay $10 to sponsor their child's teacher for the luncheon.

"We raised over $800 doing that," said organizer, Sandy Leiper. "I think the parents want to show the teachers that we acknowledge the important job they do in affecting our children's learning."

The town officially proclaimed this week Teacher Appreciation Week. Other festivities for the teachers include, a fruit tray brought in last Monday morning to get the week started off and daily draws for prizes to be won by the teachers.

Gordon Punter

Gordon Punter graduated from Providence Theological Seminary with a Master of Arts degree, majoring in Biblical Counselling. The graduation service was held on Sunday, April 27 at Calvary Temple in Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Providence Theological Seminary, which is affiliated with Providence College, is an interdenominational post-secondary institution located in Otterburne, Manitoba, 50 kilometres south of Winnipeg.

Garage sale raises money for fireworks

The third annual Canada Day Garage Sale raised more than $1,800 towards the Canada Day fireworks display.

Items for the sale were donated by local residents and business people.

"The success of the garage sale means that this year's fireworks display will be bigger than last year's," said Linda Lunt of the Canada Day Committee.

The spectacular ground effects that were a hit last year will again be staged at this year's show developed and staged by the Didsbury Volunteer Fire Department.

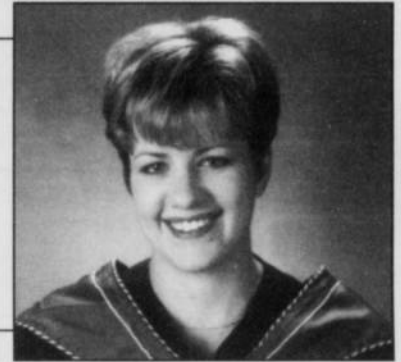

Canada Day festivities will run from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. in the downtown core. The fireworks will be set off around 11 p.m. that night.

Ibe Krupich and Gary Dolha volunteer negotiators at Canada Day Garage Sale.

Diane Buschert

At the spring convocation ceremonies May 23, 1997, Diane Buschert, daughter of Merle and Linda, graduated from the University of Lethbridge with a Bachelor of Arts and a Bachelor of Education (French Major). Diane took her elementary and high school education at Olds and Didsbury. She is presently teaching French at Grande Centre High School.

Garden Party

Marg Weaver has been on the phone for weeks, even months, to plan the special ceremony planned for the Didsbury Museum on Thursday.

"Everything is coming together just great," she reports.

Everyone is invited to the garden party which is being held to officially commemorate the naming of the old school building and museum location, a historic site.

The occasion will begin around 2 p.m. and a barbecue will be served up at 5 p.m.

In the meantime the guests will be invited to tour through the museum and even participate in a historical treasure hunt.

Special guests will include Dr. Altha Neilsen from Chinook's Edge school board, who actually own the building, and Roy Brassard.

New Auxiliary R.C.M.P. officer

Scott Morrish signed a mountain of paper work to officially become an Didsbury Auxiliary police officer in the presence of a Red Deer sub division representative, D.M.A. Doug McLay.

Morrish first became keen to the idea of becoming an auxiliary officer when he went on a few ride alongs with the local department. He said he plans to volunteer for some time and then decide if, perhaps, it is a possible future career for him.

D.M.A. McLay said the Auxiliary officer program provides an extra set of eyes and ears in the vehicles.

"We rely heavily on the program... It's a tremendous program from our perspective," he said. Morrish hopes it will be a good program from his perspective too.

In Business

She will pamper your pooch

POODLE PRUNING

By Ceilidh McClurg

Every time a client walks into Susan Vickers' business the fur flies - literally.

Vickers loves her new found career of pet grooming and likes being her own boss at The Pet Salon.

"Why didn't I think of this when I was 18," she says.

Better late than never she figures.

"The idea of starting this just sort of came to me."

So, Vickers set out to get all of her training to make herself proficient in the art of dog grooming. She already had taken two years of Animal Health Care at Lakeland College in Vermillion. Her next step was to take a four month dog grooming course at the Alberta Academy of Dog Grooming in Rocky Mountain House. After six months working as an assistant to her instructor, Vickers was ready to head out on her own.

The Pet Salon has been official for just over a year now.

Vickers says she loves her job so much that she hopes to make it a full-time venture. (She currently works part-time in the dairy industry.)

She reports her workload is about six dogs per week. "I'd really like to be busier than that."

The Pet Salon is a place to have your pooch pampered with a refreshing bath, a hair cut, nails trimmed and ears cleaned. She calls it a "full meal deal." Vickers said because of her animal health training she is also able to watch for any apparent abnormalities in a dog's health and report it to the owner who can then take the pet to a veterinarian.

The pet grooming industry has many advantages according to Vickers. She recently saw in a magazine that it is among the top six paying jobs that requires its practitioners to have little to no training.

Vickers also has an apparent love of the dogs she pampers. She says she also breeds poodles as a sideline.

"They are my four-legged kids," She also has a two legged son who has no interest in the business according to Vickers.

"I love animals. The best part of my job is that I like the satisfaction of seeing a good job. I get a lot of pride in my work," she says.

Her methods of reaching potential customers have ranged from newspaper advertising to a booth at the local Farmer's Market. But, she says the most effective for her so far has been word of mouth.

"Once somebody knows about me and they come to have their dog groomed I usually get repeat customers. It's just getting them here the first time," she says.

Vickers has lived in Didsbury for the past five years.

She encourages anyone who is interested to look her up and set up an appointment.

Sims Furniture hosts gigantic wholesale furniture sell off

By Ceilidh McClurg

Truckloads of furniture will be arriving in Olds for the largest warehouse furniture sell off in the history of the area. The Olds Sportplex had to be rented out for the mega-event because it is quite simply the only building large enough to accommodate the great deals. And it will be bursting at the seams with spectacular buys.

The sale begins on Wednesday June 11th at the main arena. Sims Furniture has arranged to bring in stock from the recent Mega Group/VIP Annual market in Edmonton.

According to John Potiuk, owner of Sims Furniture, the sale will feature furniture from the top brand name furniture companies in Canada and the United States. Names like Sealy, Sklar, Wildrose, Stylecraft, Reflections and England Corsair. Items will be wholesale priced.

All merchandise is new merchandise from the displays at the huge Edmonton furniture market.

Each spring buyers across the country are invited to attend and decide what best suits them for their stores. Rather than ship the merchandise back to the factories, representatives of Sims Furniture negotiated special discounts and free freight from their show suppliers. These savings will be passed on to their customers in Olds and surrounding areas.

This gigantic event has become an attraction that draws people from Red Deer, Lacombe, Rocky Mountain House, Didsbury, Carstairs, Innisfail, Calgary ... all over central Alberta. Many customers who were thrilled at the savings from last year's gigantic sale are already anticipating more of the same this year - great selection at awesome discount prices.

This once in a life time opportunity to purchase the newest fashions in furniture at wholesale prices will be held Wednesday, June 11 to Sunday June 15 at the Olds Sportplex. Check the Didsbury Review next week for further details.

It truly is bigger and better than last year, which is an incredible feat.

Stork's-Bill increasing in Western Canada

- An understanding of biology and control necessary

Stork's-bill, a persistent and adaptable weed, is a primary concern to growers in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and central and southern Alberta. Although it has been present as a weed in farmyards and on roadsides for many years, it is increasing in distribution and density and is now prevalent on both cultivated and non-cultivated agricultural land. Specifically, Stork's-bill is becoming a major weed problem in reduced tillage systems and with continuous cropping.

Stork's-bill can grow as an annual or winter annual, spreading by seed only. According to weed scientist Bob Blackshaw, with Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada at Lethbridge, Alberta, Stork's-bill is a strong competitor and heavy infestations of the weed can dramatically reduce crop yield.

"This is especially true in drier years," notes Blackshaw. Stork's-bill can emerge and grow before the crop and most other broadleaf weed species. As well, it continues to germinate throughout the growing season, and therefore, it is not unusual to have several flushes of seedlings."

Stork's-bill is a problem in many crops. It is particularly a concern in crops such as canola, because there are no herbicides registered to control this weed, thus making herbicide and cropping choices critical. An understanding of the biology and control of Stork's-bill is necessary in order to plan an effective control program.

Stork's-bill is well adapted to the Canadian prairies. It grows in the arid to semi-arid regions, and has spread into areas with high rainfall and into irrigated fields. It occurs throughout the cropping area in the dark brown, brown, thin black and grey wooded soil zones. Stork's-bill grows well at temperatures of 15 to 25°C; typical temperatures during May and June on the prairies.

Annual Stork's-bill plants germinate in the spring, flower, and produce seed in the fall. Winter annual plants germinate in the fall, survive the winter as a rosette, then produce flowers and seed in the early summer, allowing them a distinct competitive advantage over the crop.

The seedlings are most easily recognized by the distinctive cotyledons (seed leaves) which are deeply divided into three leaves, the end lobe being larger than the lateral lobes. Unlike the cotyledons, the first true leaves are finely divided. The stems and leaves have bristly hairs. The juvenile plant forms a dense cluster of leaves and stems that grow closely to the ground, resembling those of a carrot. Each leaf is divided into three to seven pairs of stalkless leaflets. The leaflets are irregularly divided into narrow feather-like lobed or toothed segments and are often tinged red. The leaves are mostly basal and more or less covered with short, stiff hairs.

Stork's-bill has its own dispersal mechanism, and can explosively throw seeds up to 50 cm from the plant. According to Kim Stromme, Agronomy Technician with Alberta's Agriculture, Food and Rural Development, plants growing with little or no competion can produce several thousand seeds per plant.

"Stork's-bill seeds can spread over large distances, by wind and water, moving machinery, and through contaminated hay and seed," says Stromme. "And dry seeds have tightly twisted coiled awns that corkscrew the seed into the soil, a self-burial mechanism."

Producers who do not have Stork's-bill should use preventive measures and control the spread of any small infestations of Stork's-bill.

Soil quotables

Fast Facts:

- Water erosion of soil occurs when runoff from rain fall or snow melt moves over the soil surface and takes part of the top soil with the water flow.
- Top soil is the most productive layer of the soil.
- An erodible soil with good infiltration properties is less prone to erosion than a less erodible soil with poor water infiltration.

- How well water seeps into the soil is very important to controlling runoff.
- Erodible soils can be farmed. However, they need to be appropriately managed through crop selection, residue management and reduced tillage.

Susan Graham to play live in Didsbury

By Ceilidh McClurg

Susan Graham is coming home to sing her country tunes to the familiar faces of Didsburians.

The Didsbury Agricultural Society is putting on its first ever live concert featuring Graham who was born and raised on a dairy farm in Didsbury.

"We thought it would be a good idea to put a concert on and bring her home," said organizer, Al McCoy who went to school with the country singer.

Graham, who now lives in Fort McMurray but spends most of her time on the road said she is anxious for the event and for the chance to visit with family and friends of the area.

"I can't wait to come home... I always get homesick," she said in a telephone interview.

The concert will be held in the Didsbury Memorial Arena on June 14 to be a fundraiser for the Agricultural Society. Organizers are hoping to bring in at least 1500 people to the event.

Graham has two CDs out and was nominated for a Juno award for her song, "Take The Keys To My Heart."

She has been on tour across Canada for the whole year. She said she relates stories of Didsbury, her mother and seven brothers and sisters in her shows across the country.

Graham fondly remembers her hometown.

"I love how friendly the people are. It's a quaint town, so wonderful and warm."

She said the highlight of her tours this year was playing to over 5000 people in two days in Ottawa. The eastern Lion's club sold tickets to major corporations who then gave them back to the Lions. The tickets were then distributed to anyone who could use a lift.

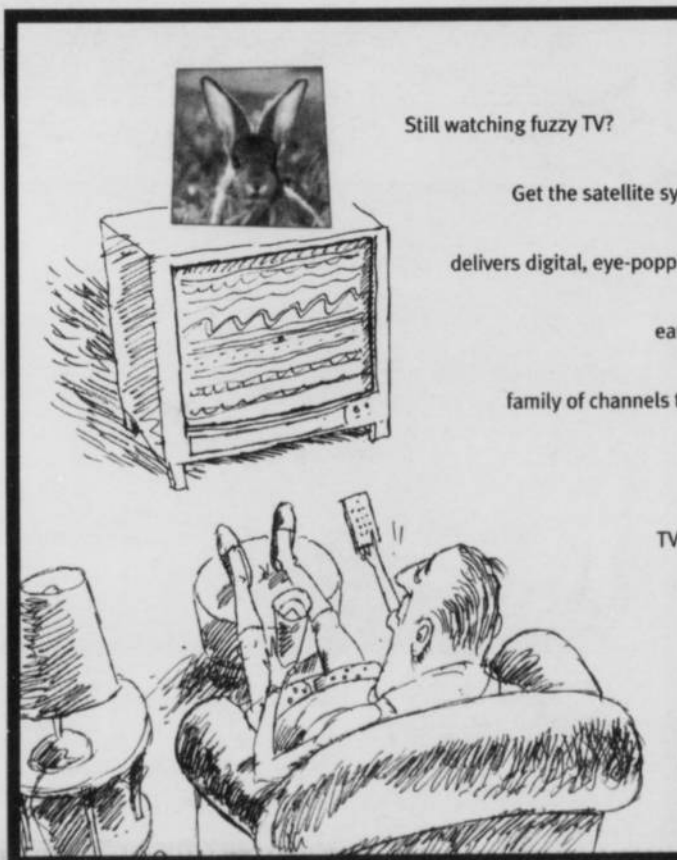

"It was really sharp," said Graham. "The people out there aren't really in contact with country music but they really love it."

The concert in Didsbury is for anyone who loves music. The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m. with the doors opening at 6 p.m. for festival seating only. Tickets for the show are available in Didsbury at Mountain View Sports, Mountain View Motors, Didsbury Esso, and Krebs Vet Centre. Tickets are also available in Sundre at the Sundre IGA, in Olds at Tedd's Food Mart and in Carstairs at the 2A Gas station.

COUNTRY STAR COMES HOME

The Didsbury Agricultural Society is putting on its first ever live concert featuring hometown favourite Susan Graham. Graham has been touring the entire year and is looking forward to performing for family and friends. Graham was born and raised on a farm in Didsbury.

Pool splashings - Water Safety Week

By Sharon Styles

Water Safety Week at the Didsbury Aquatic Center June 1-7

This year the Red Cross National Water Safety Week is promoting the proper use of lifejackets and PFD's through the slogan "Buckles and Me! Friends for Life."

Buckles is one of our AquaQuest swim lessons mascots and also the main character in the Water Safety Week colouring contest. The contest is provincial wide and being sponsored by Canadian Tire stores. They are awarding Red Cross/Buoy-O-Boy PFD's as prizes for the event. Colouring contest sheets are being distributed at the Didsbury Aquatic Center.

In recognition of Water Safety Week your D.A.C. lifeguards will be demonstrating lifesaving skills on Saturday, June 7. During public and family swims the guards will be doing mock first aid and water rescue situations. All swim admissions will receive a $0.75 discount for the day.

Drowning Statistics Did you know...

Drowning is among the leading causes of death from injury.

In 1994, there were 622 water-related deaths in Canada, 95% of these deaths were drowning. Boating drownings are the largest category of drowning in Canada, and in 1994 comprised 37% of drowning, most of these were related to recreational boating. 25% of drownings were a result of falls into the water. 22% of drownings occurred during aquatic activities, mostly recreational swimming.

Alcohol consumption is strongly associated with all types of injuries, including drowning. Blood alcohol levels were above the legal limit in 36% of all victims aged 15 years and older with known blood alcohol levels.

Of boating drowning victims, 90% were not wearing a flotation device at the time of their death. Males accounted for 82% of all water-related deaths.

The greatest number of drowning victims were found among males in the age groups between 15 and 44 years of age, however, the rates of drowning for males were also high among 1-4 year old toddlers.

The presence of an adult is an important factor in prevention and in rescue for drowning incidents. For infant and toddler drowning victims, 59% were alone and another 31% accompanied only by a minor less than 18 years old.

Lakes (32%) were the most frequent location for drowning in Canada, followed by rivers 29%, the ocean 14%, bathtubs 9%, and home swimming pools 7%.

PFD's - Key Messages

In most boating related drowning, the victim was not wearing a flotation device, or it was worn incorrectly. These drownings often occur in inland waters, usually within a few feet of safety. Proposed changes to the law will require each person on board to have a Canadian approved PFD of lifejacket that fits. No longer will one-size fits all be acceptable.

Check for proper, snug, comfortable fit and how well the PFD performs in the water. Choose a style that is appropriate for our water or boating activity. Look for the Transport Canada or the Canadian Coast Guard approval label. Choose a colour that increases your visibility in the water.

Bantam A Cannons victorious in doubleheader

By Barry Williams

It was a rocky road trip into Carstairs for Rocky Mountain House as the Carstairs Bantam A Cannons were victorious in doubleheader action played on Sunday.

Displaying an awesome swing at the plate, the Cannons bats came alive as they defeated Rocky 14 to 3 in the first game, while in the second game, the Cannons scored eight unanswered runs in the top of the sixth inning to claim a 14 to 9 win.

On the mound in the first game, lefthander Kevan Baum chuckled a one hitter through four innings. Baum overpowered the Rocky Mountain House hitters allowing one run on just two hits. Baum left seven Rocky hitters standing at the plate looking at third strikes. In relief, Rob Westlund and Wade Ogle took control of the game preserving the victory. In total, the Cannons' pitchers allowed just four hits while striking out twelve and issuing just four walks.

In the bottom half of the fifth inning, the Cannons exploded for eight runs, batting around the order. The key blow was a bases loaded triple by Jonathon Tarrant, who had a perfect day at the plate picking up three hits and a walk.

Baum helped his own cause at the plate belting out two doubles and a single, while Westlund, Ogle and Williams collected three singles apiece.

Defensively, centre fielder Wayne Wise made two difficult catches, taking away scoring opportunities for Rocky Mountain House.

After playing solid ball for two innings in the second game, the Cannons made some mental errors in the third inning allowing Rocky to score six unearned runs. However, the Cannons mounted a comeback in their half of the third inning crossing the plate eight times in taking a 10 to 9 lead. The game was solidified in the fourth inning, when the Cannons crossed the plate three times.

Making an appearance as a reliever, Kevan Baum shut down the Rocky bats in the final two innings, assuring the win for the Cannons. Baum took over on the mound, after Jonathon Tarrant, Rob Westlund and Mike Williams worked the first five innings of the game.

At the plate every player in the line-up cracked out a hit with Jonathon Tarrant and Kevin Baum collecting three hits apiece during the game, while Wade Ogle, Robert Westlund and Mike Williams belted out a pair of hits apiece.

The Cannons next home game in Chinook Bantam A league action is on June 12, when they entertain Sundre in a 7 p.m. start.

Golden Boys edged in league opener

By Barry Williams

For several years the Westcott Golden Boys dominated play in the Foothills Fastball League. But now it appears the team has emerged into a very competitive league, the Central Alberta Fastball League.

In their inaugural league game played last Thursday at the Westcott Diamond, Innisfail edged the Golden Boys 9 to 8 spoiling Westcott's debut into the league.

The win was the second consecutive victory for Innisfail increasing their league record to two wins against no defeats, while the Golden Boys have failed to post a win in just one game of league action.

After taking a hiatus from playing due to the inclement weather, the players were anxious to take a swing at the ball. And swing away they did as both teams hit the ball well, knocking out several smashing one baggers. With the abundance of hits, the chore of the pitchers in containing the batters became more difficult as the game progressed.

A close encounter, Innisfail took advantage of the Golden Boys' mental mistakes capitalizing on the late game errors committed by the Westcott squad. Four of the runs scored by Innisfail were unearned, while the majority of the Golden Boys runs were earned. In the final inning, Westcott failed to push the winning run across the plate, despite having a few opportunities.

On Wednesday June 4th the Golden Boys take another crack at posting a victory as they travel to Red Deer to tangle with Hobbema at the Great Chief Ball Park. The next home game for the Golden Boys is scheduled for Thursday June 10th when they entertain Innisfail in a 7:15 p.m. start.

In league standings released last Saturday, Innisfail and Hobbema lead the pack with four points on two wins apiece. Red Deer Copy Shop, Westcott Golden Boys along with Backstreet from Red Deer have no wins in just one league game, while Sundre has yet to play a game.

Besides league play in the Central Alberta Fastball League, the Golden Boys are participating in tournaments. From June 6 through to June 8, the Golden Boys are expected to exhibit their talents in the Calgary Industrial Diamonds tournament, while the following weekend, from June 13 to 15, the Golden Boys are expected to participate in the Hobbema Tournament.

Didsbury-Carstairs rivalry resumes in Bantam A

By Barry Williams

With the breaking of the weather, the Didsbury and Carstairs rivalry resumed in Chinook Bantam A Baseball league action.

After two games of league play, the teams have earned a split with each team winning on the opposition's diamond.

In the first meeting of the teams, Carstairs rode the masterful pitching of Mike Williams to a 14 to 4 victory, while in the return encounter played in Carstairs last Thursday, Didsbury managed a 12 to 9 victory, mainly due to a superb relief pitching performance by Shawn Hnidy and timely swings of the bat connecting for key hits.

On Thursday evening in the game played in Carstairs, a two run bases loaded double by Ryan Dalziel broke the game open in the sixth inning ensuring the win for Didsbury. Dalziel's hit capped a four run inning for the Didsbury squad. Dalziel's key blast in the sixth inning was his fourth of the game and ended a perfect appearance at the plate.

An exciting game, with the teams exchanging runs throughout the game, saw Didsbury carrying an 8 to 7 margin into the sixth inning. In the bottom of the sixth inning, Carstairs pressed for the win but were only able to cross the plate twice.

During the first game, Didsbury's bats were silenced by the pitching of Mike Williams, who kept the hitters at bay for four innings. Williams allowed a single run and fanned seven Didsbury hitters. Rob Westlund and Wade Ogle mopped up the mound duties for Carstairs preserving the win for Williams.

The difference in the game was Carstairs' ability to push runs across the plate with the bases loaded. In return, late in the game, Didsbury loaded the bases but were unable to score.

With league play wrapped up between the two teams, the rivalry is expected to resume when Didsbury hosts the league playoff tournament from June 20 through to June 22.
